HIGH COURT HEARS PLEAS ON TOLL BRIDGE ISSUE; DECISION IN NINETY DAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—The rehearing of the suit of the Northern California Development Company and Fred S. Newsum against the board of supervisors took place before the State Supreme Court here today. Arguments were made by the attorneys, and the matter was submitted and it is expected a decision will be handed down in the next ninety days.

In a recent decision the court made a ruling that many attorneys believed would invalidate every toll bridge and franchise in the state. At the rehearing was asked for the purpose of clarifying the matter.

The suit was originally brought to compel the supervisors to call an election to submit an initiative measure to the people of the county granting a toll bridge franchise to the Northern California Development Company.

Many interests were represented at the hearing today, and Judge Warren Olney appeared as a friend of the court, and asked that the original decision be so modified that existing franchises would not be affected.

Attorney William S. Pierce, representing the development company, made an extended and clear cut argument in which he contended that the initiative applied to franchises.

and asked the court so to rule. This is really the vital question in the entire case. District Attorney A. B. Tinning represented the supervisors, and while he contended the application of the development company was technically defective, he would also like to know if the law relating to franchise was effected by the initiative.

"Extra" Votes Starts Probe At Martinez

Although they have no suspicion of irregularity, officials of Martinez are investigating the recent school trustee election as a result of a discovery that there were six more votes in the ballot box than there were names on the voting list.

It is thought the "extra" votes were due to an absence of regular lists, making it necessary to have the voters sign up on another list. While the presence of the extra ballots is regarded as an oversight, officials regard the matter as grounds for a contest.

R. L. Boyer, defeated Mrs. Wanda Muir for the trusteeship of the Alhambra school at Martinez in last Friday's election.

The CORE

According to a report just issued by the department of commerce at Washington, the government of the city of Oakland is one of the most expensive in the country. With the proposed license ordinance going into effect soon, it is no wonder that there is much talk of recall of the city commissioners.

From the general trend of politics it is safe to assume that the policies of President Coolidge will dominate the national convention of the Republican party. Senator Fess of Ohio has been selected as temporary chairman of the convention and he will make the key note speech. Fess is a warm personal friend of the President.

Couples who refuse to wait the required three-days before being able to secure their marriage licenses, and hike to Nevada, where there is no delay are bumping into all kinds of obstacles. This week, two young men and their intended brides left for the nearby Gretna Green, but got stalled in the snow in the high Sierras. They were obliged to turn back, and have now made known their intentions in Oakland.

People are asking the question how the man who is operating the big gambling game in this city has the temerity to invite the stickers to enter his "fleece" place at same time telling them "you are just as safe here as you are in your own home." It would seem that any man who is fool enough to go up against a sure thing game ought to lose his money, but the trouble is it is not the individual who suffers the most, but his family.

"What's the fun in being rich if you don't care to work," asks William Flannigan, 21, of Milwaukee, who is working in New York at a $20 a week job, although worth $4,000,000.

At the police station, Mrs. Wilson blamed it all on other women.

PLANS BARED FOR NEW SPAN

T. A. Tomasini, who holds a franchise to construct a $18,000,000 bridge connecting Alameda county with Belvedere, appeared before the Marin county supervisors and submitted plans and specifications for another suit connecting Belvedere with the mainland, which would provide a continuous span from Albany in this county, to the Marin county shores.

Tomasini declared the bridge would serve a double purpose, to afford Belvedere residents a direct route to Sausalito, and give them easy access to San Francisco ferries, as well as linking Alameda and Marin counties.

According to Tomasini, arrangements for financing both bridges have been complete.

The suit charges that because of negligence of Smith Brothers, a conduit erected by the firm near the mouth of the Claremont bore failed of its purpose and storm waters from San Pablo creek flowed into the batch basin and thence into the tunnel to take toll of ten tunnel workers drowned.

Defendant Is Given Verdict In Damage Suit

Judgment in favor of the defendant was rendered by Judge Alstrom yesterday afternoon in the case of Josephine Waite versus John Zerfass, a suit to recover damages as the outgrowth of an auto accident July 23, 1927.

Judge Alstrom held both parties equally culpable, and based his decision on that point. There was doubt whether Zerfass gave the proper signal when he proceeded out from the curb, and also doubt whether the plaintiff was giving her full attention to the wheel at the time of the collision.

Attorney C. D. Horn represented Zerfass, while the plaintiff was represented by Wilbur O'Reilly.

Melon Raisers Warned Against Big Production

Richmond boys who take seasonal baths in watermelon juice will be interested in the announcement by Emil Rauchenstein, agricultural economics expert at U. C., that unless farmers keep down production of this aquatic delicacy, prices are likely to take a drop, or at least not rise above their present levels.

Rauchenstein warns that state watermelon growers will face the stiffest competition in years, but neglects to specify whether this will be due to market conditions or a growing juvenile tendency to gather melons on the vine under cover of darkness.

The petitions accuse him of permitting bootlegging establishments, opium dens and gambling places to operate. More than 3,000 names have already been signed on the petition, or more than a thousand more than the number required.

Young, in denying the charges, declared: "If the suffrage of such people as those who have fathered this recall movement is necessary to keep me in office, I do not want to hold office."

POT OF GOLD

Miss Peggy Cleary is said to have cleared $500,000 out of the current stock market frenzy.

Many other girls and many men will be tempted to emulate Miss Peggy.

Half a million dollars is a tidy bit of change to shoot for.

But how to repeat Miss Peggy's sensational winning is another story.

When she won $500,000, somebody else lost $500,000.

In the stock market, as in other games, whenever there are winnings there are also losings.

It is an undeniable fact that few win, but many lose.

Those who lose are usually the ones who can least afford it.

Knowing nothing about the market or its conditions, they plunge their savings in one wild effort to unearth a gold mine.

Almost without fail, such persons slide down into ruin.

The pot of gold at the end of the rainbow is as easy to get as is the pot of gold at the rise of the stock market.

If you are wise, you will study the stocks that are for sale, and will INVEST in some substantial security.

Most American companies are capably managed and are practically certain to benefit from the increase of prosperity that the years hold in store.

You can profit as a stockholder as the nation's business expands.

But—Pick wisely, and invest. Don't speculate?

RADIO LEGISLATION

The house has passed the radio bill extending the life of the radio commission and directing equal distribution of stations according to population. The debate was amusing in the extreme reviewing the experiences of members of congress turning the dial and getting nothing but patent medicine ads. The bill goes back to the senate.

Those pacifist ministers who told the House committee that we ought not build any more warships evidently believe that if a linnb has to be sacrificed to the gods of war Uncle Sam ought to furnish the mutton.

A committee has asked Secretary Kellogg to protest against alleged religious riots in Roumania. Let's see, wasn't there a League of Nations organized a few years ago?

Fashion experts say that the modern flapper is to pass out of existence in 1928 and if this is true it wasn't because the flapper was too tender a plant to survive in these hectic days.

MRS. COOLIDGE, accompanied by a secret service operative, is shown above leaving the Memorial hospital in Northampton, Mass., after she had visited her mother, Mrs. Coolidge, who has been seriously ill. The first lady was happy that her mother was resting easier.

VIGOROUS HEALTH

PATIENCE
Very few people have patience. They may think they have, but they do not, for few really understand what patience is. The old quotation about patience sitting on a monument is very apropos because many persons have died of impatience. You think this is an exaggeration? Not at all, consider where lack of patience may lead you.

If we are to learn how to live, so as to postpone death as long as possible we must take the time to patiently study the needs of our bodies. Most people do not do this. They leave that to the doctor and when sick they demand pills to make them well quickly. This only makes them worse, so that ultimately they die before their time, apparently of some disease, but really of impatience. Impatience leads to tension which interferes with circulation, which slows down all the functions of the body, which shortens life. Impatience causes people to burn the candle of their life force at both ends, which leads to an early demise. Impatience is the cause of many death by accident. So you see, if your wise you will learn patience, for when properly understood it is a source of great power, happiness and progress.

I am a young girl with a very oily skin. As a result hair is beginning to grow on my face. How can I prevent this?—MISS E. F. The oily skin is not the cause of the growth of hair, though the causes of the skin trouble may be partly responsible for the glandular disturbance which is probably causing the growth of hair. The use of pumice stone will help discourage the growth, but the main thing will be to correct all the habits of living, especially the diet. Fats are restricted and more fruits and vegetables are used especially raw ones. Air, sun, dry friction and cool water baths are all used and strict cleanliness is observed.

My little daughter has kept her teeth clean ever since she was able to hold a brush, yet they are in bad condition. She has already lost four. What would you advise?—Mrs. V. M. I would advise giving attention to something else besides cleanliness. This is not the only measure required. The teeth depend on proper food, the same as the rest of the body. A strictly natural diet of fruits, vegetables, whole grain cereals and dairy products is required with special attention to raw foods which require thorough mastication. Attention is given to all general health building measures, and cod liver oil may be helpful.

Are eggs acid foods? Would the use of two eggs a day cause a bad breath?—J. BERNING. Eggs are not acid food, but they are acid forming. Eggs in excess might cause bad breath, but two eggs a day will not be too much. If no other heavy proteins are used, if plenty of fruits and vegetables are employed and if regular exercise is taken. A few days on fruit may be required, after which a largely raw food diet is used with care to avoid overeating and due attention is given to all general health building measures.

Affairs of the Heart and Your Marriage Problems

Dear Patricia Lee:

I am a girl of seventeen and have been married for about two months. I'm am to be a mother in August, but the baby is not my husband's. I lived with another fellow, but could not marry him because he had not money enough to get a divorce from his wife, although they had been separated for about two years. My husband knew before he married me that I was to have a baby, and promised to keep and love the baby as if it was his own. My problem is this: I really love the fellow, but yet sometimes I think I love my husband too, as he is so good to me and gives me everything my heart desires. The other fellow would give me everything if he could, but he cannot afford to. I wouldn't hurt my husband for the world, although he always said he'd be willing to give up his happiness to make me happy. And yet I can't bear to hurt the other one either.—CLARA.

Dear Clara—You're a very foolish girl, in the first place, there is only one man in a thousand who would marry you knowing that you were going to have a child. In the second place I don't see how you can have any affection left for a man who was still married and who took advantage of your youth to get you into such a jam. In the third place, it isn't playing the game to even consider the other man when you have promised to "love, honor and obey" your husband. I don't believe you quite realize your husband's generosity and unselfishness. It's easy enough for the man who hasn't anything to promise. Remember that your husband is making good on his promises! I think you know what my advice is going to be. Stop dramatizing your love for a failure and do everything you can to hold the love of a real man.

GOOD MANNERS
Q. Is shiny, jet jewelry permissible for mourning wear?
A. Jewelry, except the necessary accessories in dull black, is never worn during the mourning period. A short strand of pearls may be worn with half mourning.
Q. How many bridesmaids are required at a home wedding? By whom are the bridesmaids' costumes selected?
A. The number of bridesmaids rests entirely with the bride. At a quiet home wedding it is not necessary to have any. Often a maid or matron of honor is the bride's only attendant. The bridesmaids' costumes are selected—or rather suggested—by the bride to harmonize with the color plan of the wedding.

POWDER MY BACK

NOVEL BY MARLINE DE HAAS
Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"POWDER MY BACK," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

"Powder my back," said Harry Stark, in "Powder My Back," the photographs made of Irene Rich were so striking that she was used for publicity purposes. One of these pictures appears in her home town paper in Brooklyn, Iowa. Marie, her married sister, sees it and is horrified. She writes Irene a letter to tell her, suggesting that she should go to the country. Irene is amused and accepts. On her way to Brooklyn she meets Harry Stark, a friend of her niece, Mildred. The night of her arrival Marie gives a reception and Adele catches her sister cheating at bridge.

"Come here, darling," Adele took hold of her niece's arm. "Where have you been? I've missed you all evening."

"Oh, mother wanted me to look after the sandwiches in the kitchen for her, and I had to stay out there for awhile," Mildred smiled.

"I see. Well, let's go over here in a corner and sit down," Adele suggested. "I'd much rather talk to you than all these other people."

"Is there anything the matter, Aunt Adele?" Mildred questioned, sensing that something was amiss.

"Not a thing—now that I've found someone I can talk to," Adele smiled fondly at the girl. "But please don't call me Aunt Adele."

"Because—well, because, Adele, I'm not like him really," Mildred shook her head. "I haven't any talent, I haven't anything that would make him really love me. And he couldn't marry me, you see, because he hasn't any position or anything there. And he'd only have to stop his real work to make money to support me. O, you do see that, don't you?"

"Yes, I know, darling," Adele pressed her niece's hand. "But here comes Harry now—with the food!"
Harry reported with plates of salad and sandwiches and sat down on the floor before Adele and Mildred. Almost immediately he began to speak of his ideas—his work—turning to Adele. And Mildred realized that he would much rather talk to the actress, who might be able to help him, slide off the sofa and excused herself. Adele looked after her niece for a moment, wondering, and then she turned her attention to Harry.

CHAPTER IX
It was only a few days after Adele's arrival in Brooklyn and the town had settled down into some quietude when Mildred knocked suddenly at her aunt's door. Renee admitted the girl, whose face was flushed with excitement and whose eyes sparkled with happiness.
"Adele—Adele! What do you think! Mildred flung her arms about her aunt's neck. "We're going to give a play—the Brooklyn Dramatic Club, I mean—and I'm going to be in it, and they've asked me if I wouldn't get you to help us. Will you, Adele? Will you?"

"My, my, my. What fun!" Adele smiled up at her niece from her chair before the dressing table. "Of course, I'll help you, but you'll have to tell me all about it."

"Well, it's a play we're going to do to get some money to buy a new curtain for the stage at school," Mildred began, seating herself in the big armchair near the window. "And it's called 'Dora's Dilemma.' It's in three acts. I think Dora. That's because you're my aunt, you know," she laughed about you sometimes."

"Yes, I understand, darling. But it really doesn't matter when you like me. That's all that's necessary, isn't it?" Adele questioned. "You know, you've hair almost the exact color and texture of mine." Adele smoothed her niece's hair. "I wish my barber in New York could cut it for you." He could make it—there's Harry," Adele motioned to the young man who had just come into the room.

But Harry had sighted the two almost immediately and was making a dash across the floor to them. He shook hands with Mildred and then with Adele, but his glances were all for the actress, and he held her hand for a fraction of a moment.

"I'm sorry to be so late, but I've been detained at the bank," he explained. "May I sit down with you here?"

"Yes, please do," Adele invited. "I'm almost in need of a life-line. Mildred here is my only hope, and now that you've arrived I'm going to feel much more safe and secure. But I do wish you'd go and find me something to eat. I'm becoming discouraged, and I need sustenance."

"With the greatest of pleasure," Harry bowed solemnly and went to seek food.
Adele looked after the young man for a moment, and when she found watching her niece seriously. "You are quite fond of him, aren't you, Mildred," she asked her niece.

"Why—?" Mildred looked into Adele's eyes and then she answered. "Yes," she said frankly. "I'm very fond of him. But his ambitions are going to take him far away from Brooklyn and from me."

"But, my darling, how should they?" Adele was puzzled at the viewpoint that Mildred seemed to take.

"Oh, Adele, you must understand," Mildred begged. "Don't you see, he wants to go to New York and write plays and do all sorts of wonderful things like that. And I'd only be a hindrance to him on his journey to fame. He must travel alone—just like you did, and so he doesn't know—how I feel—that's all."

"You dear, dear child." It was all Adele could do to refrain from taking this lovely young thing into her arms and comforting her. It brought back tender memories of her own life—of the one person she had loved to any extent—when she was very young. And she knew how she had put love aside for all the things she had gained, and suddenly for the moment she wondered if it were worth it.

"But, Mildred, why do you think you would hinder him?" Adele pursued the topic.

"Because—well, because, Adele, I'm not like him really," Mildred shook her head. "I haven't any talent, I haven't anything that would make him really love me. And he couldn't marry me, you see, because he hasn't any position or anything there. And he'd only have to stop his real work to make money to support me. O, you do see that, don't you?"

"Yes, I know, darling," Adele pressed her niece's hand. "But here comes Harry now—with the food!"

Harry reported with plates of salad and sandwiches and sat down on the floor before Adele and Mildred. Almost immediately he began to speak of his ideas—his work—turning to Adele. And Mildred realized that he would much rather talk to the actress, who might be able to help him, slide off the sofa and excused herself. Adele looked after her niece for a moment, wondering, and then she turned her attention to Harry.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME

CALIFORNIA FILM SHOWS CHICAGO LIFE

It cannot be denied that "Chicago" is a De Mille Studio production for Pathe, which was shown at the California Theatre yesterday, is a great picture. It scored a triumph in its reception by local picture fans was most enthusiastic. It must be admitted also that Phyllis Haven as the jazz crazed wife, and Victor Varconi, as her forgiving husband, presented portrayals so artistic in conception and execution as to amaze their most ardent admirers. Directed by Frank Urson, this screen version of Maurine Watkins' celebrated stage success, "Chicago," is decidedly one of the best productions presented here in many years.

The story deals with a vixen wife, who, to gratify her wild desires, deceives her husband. When her angelic daddy seeks to rid himself of the shackles with which she has enslaved him, she selfishly murders him. Although her husband is aware of her infidelities, his love for her prompts him to do all in his power to save her from the chair, when a rascally criminal lawyer, portrayed by Robert Edson, demands an excessive fee. Hart is heralded by the press as "The beautiful jazz slayer," and she reveals in her notorious which ultimately results in her acquittal. Then her husband casts her off and she finds herself an outcast, alone and forgotten.

There are many scenes of dramatic force and the swift moving action, which, besides the supporting cast, which includes, besides those named, May Kolsen, Julia Payne, Virginia Bradford and T. Roy Barnes, was eminently satisfactory. "Chicago" is a picture that lives up to its reputation and it is quite worth while.

Other features on the same program include "Find the King" an Edward Everett Horton comedy; and current news events.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, April 4.—His only concern appearing to be a desire for exercise, William Hickman plays ball with his fellow murderers for an hour and a half here every day.

Claire Windsor has a pleasing role as a stage star. She is given ample opportunity as the footlight favorite and wife of a successful producer to display many fashion creations. In the story she is supported by two leading men, John Bowers and E. Alton Warren. To him falls the pleasant task of wooing and winning the love of the pretty heroine, while Warren is required to delineate the less suspense and the next instant is overawed at the gorgeous splendor of the theatre.

Salvation Army Disowns Worker

LOS ANGELES, April 4.—A Salvation Army worker, convicted of a crime, great or small, is doubly disgraced. This was dramatically shown in a courtroom here today when William Danke, a "soldier in the Army of Salvation," was convicted of failing to support his dependent children. As he was led from the courtroom by a bailiff, other Army workers surrounded him. They removed his coat and cap, and the religious insignia, and handed him a civilian coat.

School nurse, says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there is no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically, and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful, every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling, because it is so pure and harmless. And works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SEA ROMANCE FEATURE FILM AT RICHMOND

It realism is the aim of motion picture goers, they are sure to find it today at the Richmond Theatre, where Columbia Pictures' "The Opening Night" commenced a two day run yesterday.

The adaptation, continuity and direction were by E. H. Griffith. In transferring the story to the celluloid, Griffith made the most of the opportunity to introduce queer twists, quaint characters, picturesque atmospheric backgrounds and thrilling action. Play-ers of all sorts and descriptions were required by the plot. These range from small tots to aged persons.

There is the clamor of the stage, the romance of the sea, the bliss of home life and the adventure and valor of catastrophe blended in this screen fabric. The emotions run the gamut, tears well into the eyes in pathetic scenes only to be driven away by the quaint humor of one of the odd characters. One moment the audience is pausing in breathless suspense and the next instant is overawed at the gorgeous splendor of the theatre.

Charged with failure to provide for minor children, Thomas Moore, this city, was yesterday bound over for trial in the superior court, following preliminary arraignment before Judge Alstrom.

Moore was returned on extradition papers from Billings, Montana, after a long search for him by his bonding company.

He worked his way east as far as Pittsburgh, and on the return trip received a broken arm in a blast in Texas.

Meanwhile another child arrived at his home here, and the county stepped in to support his family. Moore will probably ask probation when his case is heard Monday.

Hot Dogs And Highways May Come To Sahara

Automobile routes across the Sahara, with a hot-dog stand under each palm tree, may come into existence, if the present plans of an organization for the promotion of the Sahara are realized.

The organization is mapping out routes through the desert in an effort to develop the country and link Algeria with the Sudan, according to the National Automobile Club. The routes are not actual highways, but are merely tracks made by vehicles that have crossed the lands. Last year, however, modern low-priced automobiles traveled some of them and the promotion organization is working on the assumption that where one car has traveled, another will follow.

FIRE ROUTS FAMILIES AS HOME PERILED

Residents of a flat at 157 Santa street were routed out of their homes at 10 o'clock yesterday morning when a fire caused by a defective chimney in the upper flat spread to the lower floor and threatened destruction of the building. Firemen answered promptly and a was confined to $20, covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Jungstrom and daughter, occupying the lower flat, were awakened when the fire burst through the ceiling and released a chandelier which fell to the floor. In the upper flat were Mr. and Mrs. D. Cook and small child.

Assistant Fire Chief Barry investigated the blaze. The building is owned by H. Heilmann.

Executives In Control Battle

NEW YORK, April 4.—A transportation kingdom which can be measured only in billions of dollars will be moulded tomorrow. The destiny of more than 50,000 miles will be discussed at a conference in this city of a score of railroad executives.

The object of the conference is the merger of eastern lines.

The chief point of contention is the Lehigh Valley and the Lackawanna. The New York Central and Erie have one, Pennsylvania World like the other.

Broadly speaking the executives meeting tomorrow are divided into two camps. On one side is the New York Central backed by the Baltimore and Ohio and the Nickel Plate. On the other is the Pennsylvania and L. S. Lorce of the Delaware and Hudson.

FUR FARM FOR DIABLO

Announcement that he will establish a farm on Mt. Diablo to propagate fur-bearing animals for commercial purposes was made by Captain S. A. Johnson of Crockett following receipt of word that the California Fish and Game Commission has given approval to conduct of the industry within the confines of the Mt. Diablo game refuge.

Johnson has taken a long lease on the Tongs' place and will start immediately on development of the property, fox and other fur-bearing animals, whose pelts are used extensively in Milady's finery, will be propagated.

Johnson has prepared to engage in the venture on an extensive scale and intends to establish the farm immediately.

Attempt To Evade Marriage Act Ends In Snowdrift

A barrier of snow 50 miles from Reno yesterday prevented Richmond youth from taking a bride and dealt equally with a Burlingame couple who made up a double elopement to the Nevada city.

Harry Arnold, 438 Twelfth street, this city, and Mary Martin of Burlingame, were one-half of the party, while Frank DeMartini of San Mateo and Lena Martin made up the other half.

The couple made application for a license at Oakland, and then decided to foil the three-day marriage license law by going to Reno. Storms in the mountains left too much snow to permit easy travel, so the double wedding was postponed, and the California marriage law scored another point.

Deputy Fails To Cash In On Hickman Reward

After spending three months in Los Angeles, trying to collect the reward money offered for the capture of William Edward Hickman, Tom Gurdane, Pendleton chief of police, who, with Buck Llewellyn, captured the child slayer, has returned to Pendleton with but $3,600 of the huge reward offered for Hickman's capture.

Gurdane said neither he, Llewellyn nor their attorneys were able to get an audience with Mayor Cryer or any other officials connected with the distribution of rewards.

"I bumped into a political ring down there that amazed me," declared Gurdane. "Mayor Cryer, heading the committee of awards is not going to let a cent get out of California that he can keep there."

"People of Los Angeles were very agreeable," Gurdane continued, "but most of the higher police officers were disagreeable."

RICHMOND TO AID S. A. ARMY FUND CAMPAIGN

To cooperate with the Salvation Army of Richmond in underwriting its budget for the coming year, Ralph E. Borgen, chairman, has called a meeting for tonight in Memorial hall. Members of the ways and means committee being selected by Borgen will be present at the meeting which will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

The use of the hall was accorded the Salvation Army by the Veterans' bodies of Richmond familiar with the work of the organization during the World war.

Due to the unemployment throughout the United States, the Salvation Army has had its hands full in alleviating want. The local headquarters has proved a source of material comfort to the needy families.

Some very interesting figures have been compiled here to show that 321 families, embracing 1,443 persons, have been relieved during the past 12 months. In addition 875 meals were given to the poor and nearly 1,200 garments were provided.

The Salvation Army Corps officer and his wife put in 1,356 hours visiting the needy.

The above items cover only a few of the numerous activities of this organization.

More than 7,000 persons have been acted by the melody of the cornet and the clanging of the little tamborine and attended open-air services in Richmond. More than 5,000 Richmond people attend services at the chapel during the year.

Say It With Flowers On Easter Sunday

To cheer your friends at this joyous Easter time, the most appropriate way is to send flowers. Mother, father, wife, sister and sweetheart also will appreciate your remembrance, and it is really a very easy way to show your appreciation by "saying it with flowers."

As usual go to the florist who has served you so many years in the past. Our potted lilies are the best we have had in years, and cut flowers are also delightful.
